

PRACTICAL GUIDANCE

What Nonprofits Need to Know About Lobbying in PENNSYLVANIA

New in This Update:

This Practical Guidance resource updates the 12.14.21 version. Updates include:

- A new FAQ describing how to use this resource
- A new FAQ comparing federal and state lobbying rules
- Updated links to certain resources at the Pennsylvania Department of State
- Added detail on potentially required donor disclosure

Inside This Guide:

This Practical Guidance resource is designed to help your nonprofit organization determine if lobbying rules in Pennsylvania might apply to your work in the Commonwealth. It includes:

- Summary of registration and reporting triggers
- Key takeaways for nonprofit organizations
- FAQs
- Case study for a hypothetical small student voting rights organization
- List of helpful additional resources

State Executive Branch Officials	Yes, for both direct and grassroots lobbying	Same triggers as for legislative lobbying, with all legislative and executive branch lobbying work combined for a single trigger.
Local Legislators or Local Executive Branch Officials	Maybe	Pennsylvania law does not cover lobbying activities at the local city or county level, but some local jurisdictions, including the cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, have their own lobbying ordinances that may apply.

KEY LOBBYING TAKEAWAYS FOR NONPROFIT ADVOCACY ORGANIZATIONS IN PENNSYLVANIA:

- Both direct and grassroots lobbying are regulated: The definition of lobbying activity in Pennsylvania is very broad and can sometimes include educational campaigns on public issues.
- Disclaimers are required on all grassroots communications: Disclaimer language clearly and conspicuously stating that your organization paid for any grassroots communications you make is required even if you have not triggered a lobbyist registration requirement.
- You will need good expense, time, and revenue tracking systems: If you are doing direct or indirect (grassroots) advocacy work in Pennsylvania you will need to have good recordkeeping systems in place, since you will need to examine on a quarterly basis whether organizational or individual lobbyist registration requirements have been triggered, based on expenses and hours worked. Once registration is required, you will also need to disclose quarterly if any of your donors contributed more than 10% of your total revenue that may be used for lobbying in the period. See the FAQ on donor disclosure below for more details.

This resource is current as of May 2022. We do our best to periodically update our resources and welcome any comments or questions regarding new developments in the law. Please e-mail us at advocacy@afj.com or at info@democracycapacity.org with any comments.

This resource is meant to convey the basic principles of sections of state law that are most relevant for nonprofit advocacy and does not cover all aspects or all details of the state statutes. Please refer to the full text of the law for more details. This resource also does not cover details of federal lobbying disclosure law, IRS regulations related to lobbying, or any separate county or municipal regulations that may apply to lobbying-related activities. In some states there is an ongoing movement towards the enactment of additional local county and municipal level lobbying regulations, and organizations are urged to check with the appropriate local jurisdiction before undertaking local lobbying activity.

Q: How should we think about using this Practical Guidance resource?

This Practical Guidance – What Nonprofits Need to Know About Lobbying resource is designed to help your nonprofit organization determine if state or local regulations might apply to your existing or proposed advocacy work. The answer is surprisingly often – YES! – but there are also often many advocacy activities that do not require state lobbyist registration or reporting.

This Guide will help you identify which of your state or local activities might trigger registration and reporting, and also give you potential alternative program design ideas that would allow your program to be in compliance with the regulations but not require registration and reporting.

If you do need to register and report with the state, this Guide will also give you practical tips about what information needs to be included in your reports, and how to try to minimize your operational burden while remaining in compliance with the rules.

While this Guide does provide some information about the federal IRS rules that apply to nonprofit lobbying, it is designed to cover state and local regulations. Links to resources containing more information about federal IRS rules can be found in the federal lobbying FAQ below and on the Additional Resources page of this Guide.

We also hope that this Guide will prove useful to legal counsel and other advocacy advisors who are working to assist nonprofit advocacy organizations, as well as the funders who generously support this work. Advisors and funders are invited to use our free Bolder Advocacy Technical Assistance Hotline and the written legal resources available in our resource library at <https://bolderadvocacy.org/>

Q: What activities count as lobbying?

The intent of the lobbying law in Pennsylvania is to inform the public about the identity and scope of activity of those who are paid to influence the actions of the legislature and the executive branch of government in the Commonwealth.

The law broadly covers efforts to influence legislative and administrative action through either direct or indirect (grassroots) lobbying but does not include general educational campaigns on public issues unless the purpose of, or a foreseeable effect of, such general education campaigns is to “directly influence legislative action or administrative action.”

Important definitions that relate to the lobbying laws in Pennsylvania are outlined in more detail below.

- “lobbying” is an effort to influence legislative action or administrative action and includes:
 - Direct or indirect communication
 - Incurring office expenses related to efforts to influence legislative or administrative actions
 - Providing any gift, hospitality, transportation or lodging to a state official or employee for the purpose of advancing the interest of your lobbying employee or paid consultant (the “Lobbyist”) or your organization itself (the “Principal”)
- “effort to influence” means any attempt to initiate, support, promote, modify, oppose, delay, or advance a legislative or administrative action on behalf of your nonprofit for economic consideration
- “legislative action” means any action taken by a state official or employee involving the preparation, research, drafting, introduction, consideration, modification, amendment, approval, passage, enactment, tabling, postponement, defeat, or rejection of any of the following:
 - Legislation

FAQS

- Legislative motions
- A veto by the Governor
- Confirmation of appointments by the Governor or appointments to public boards or commissions by a member of the General Assembly
- “administrative action” means:
 - An agency’s (which includes any executive agency, independent agency, board, commission, authority or department of an executive branch of the Commonwealth) (i) proposal, consideration, promulgation or rescission of a regulation; (ii) development or modification of a statement of policy; (iii) approval or rejection of a regulation; or (iv) procurement of supplies, services and construction that falls under the state’s procurement code (grants to nonprofits are not regulated by the procurement code)
 - The review, revision, approval, or disapproval of a regulation under the Regulatory Review Act
 - The Governor’s approval or veto of legislation
 - The nomination or appointment of an individual as an officer or employee of the Commonwealth
 - The proposal, consideration, promulgation, or rescission of an executive order
- “indirect communication” means any effort, whether written or oral or by another medium, to encourage others, including the general public, to take action, the purpose or foreseeable effect of which is to directly influence legislative action or administrative action

Indirect communication includes grassroots lobbying activities such as letter-writing campaigns, mailings, telephone banks, print and electronic media advertising, and billboards, but also specifically includes “publications and educational campaigns on public issues” to the extent that the purpose of, or a foreseeable effect of, such indirect communication is to “directly influence legislative action or administrative action.”
- “legislation” means bills, resolutions, amendments, and nominations pending or proposed (including drafts) in either the Senate or the House of Representatives, or by any official or employee of the Commonwealth, or any other matter which may become the subject of legislative action by either chamber of the General Assembly

Q: What triggers lobbyist registration and reporting in Pennsylvania?

Organizational registration: Once your nonprofit spends more than $3,000 in a calendar quarter on lobbying, you will need to register and report as a “Principal” for the remainder of the two-year registration period (unless you later are no longer required to be registered and terminate the registration). In Pennsylvania lobbying expenses include all organizational costs associated with lobbying activities, including staff and consultant compensation and reimbursements, office expenses, advertising, staff and volunteer meals, travel and lodging, and any other costs of doing the lobbying-related work. These related expenses must be reported on your nonprofit’s Principal quarterly expense report.

Individual registration: Individuals lobbying for your organization may trigger a separate individual registration requirement and need to register as “Lobbyists” if in any calendar quarter:

- Any employee works more than 20 hours and is paid more than $3,000 on a prorated basis for lobbying tasks
- Any paid consultant is compensated for lobbying (through either pay or expense reimbursement) more than $3,000

It is possible when the lobbying work is spread amongst multiple employees that your organization will need to register and report, but none of your individual employees will need to register because no single employee's work hours spent lobbying meet the threshold of at least 20 hours per quarter.

Note that once your organization is registered you will need to continue to keep track of all employee compensation and work hours allocated to lobbying, even for unregistered individual employees, since it is possible that employees who did not originally trigger individual registration requirements might trigger them in a later quarter.

Example 1: Your organization's programming in the first quarter of the year includes several lobbying-related activities, with expenses totaling $20,000 for the quarter. Three employees worked more than 20 hours in the quarter on lobbying activities, but the prorated compensation for lobbying work for only one of them amounted to $3,000 or more during the period. In this case, your organization must register as a "Principal," and only the one employee who was also paid more than $3,000 on a prorated basis for lobbying activities will need to register as an individual "Lobbyist." Both your organization (the "Principal") and your individual registered Lobbyist employee will need to continue to report for the entire remainder of the two-year registration period even if you do not do any more lobbying work in later quarters. If you do any additional lobbying work during the remainder of the registration period, you will need to continue to monitor each quarter if any additional employees or consultants need to register.

Example 2: Your organization spent $5,000 in the first quarter of the year to design, print, and mail postcards to voters in your county asking them to call their Senators to support a particular bill. Your policy director spent 10 hours on the task, and no other employee spent more than an hour or two each on the task. In this case your organization has spent more than $3,000 on lobbying in the quarter and will need to register as a "Principal." However, since every employee worked less than 20 hours on the lobbying activities in the quarter, none of your employees will need to register as individual Lobbyists. Your organization will need to continue to report through the end of the two-year registration period even if you do not do any more lobbying work in later quarters. If you do any additional lobbying work during the remainder of the registration period, you will need to continue to monitor each quarter if any employees or consultants need to register.

Q: Are there exceptions to what counts as reportable lobbying?

Yes! The below activities, if they are the only lobbying-like activities your organization and employees perform during a reporting period, do not trigger a registration requirement – even if your organization is spending more than $3,000 a quarter on the work and even if any of your employees devotes more than 20 hours a quarter to these activities.

- Monitoring of legislative or administrative action
- Preparing testimony and testifying before a committee of the General Assembly
- Participating in any administrative proceeding of an agency, including preparing and delivering comments on regulations or at agency advisory committee meetings

However, once your organization is required to register, then the costs of the above activities must also be reported in your quarterly expense reports.

Q: How does this work together with federal IRS lobbying regulations?

All tax-exempt organizations must follow both federal tax law (regulated by the IRS) and any state and local lobbying laws that apply to their work.

The IRS rules regulate how much lobbying a nonprofit organization can do, while state and local regulations are transparency rules designed to help the public understand what funds are being spent to influence decision making and by whom. As a result, federal tax law rules related to lobbying and state lobbying regulations are quite different, and state lobbying regulations also vary greatly state to state.

In general, the IRS requires 501(c)(3) organizations to report on their annual Form 990 legislative lobbying at the federal, state, and local levels, but does not count as lobbying advocacy activities relating to executive branch or administrative officials at any level. There is no additional requirement for organizations or individuals to “register” with the IRS to report lobbying activities.

Nonprofits that are public charities under IRS exemption 501(c)(3), including grantmaking public charities like community foundations, can lobby within the generous limits allowed by federal tax law. The amount of lobbying is determined by either using the insubstantial part test or the 501(h) expenditure test. See our resource <https://bolderadvocacy.org/resource/public-charities-can-lobby-guidelines-for-501c3-public-charities-2/>

Organizations that are tax-exempt under 501(c)(4) (social welfare organizations), 501(c)(5) (labor organizations), and 501(c)(6) (trade associations) can do unlimited lobbying. See our <https://bolderadvocacy.org/resource/being-a-player-a-guide-to-the-irs-lobbying-regulations-for-advocacy-charities/>

Your organization will need to ensure that you are keeping track of your lobbying staff time and your expenses in a way that works for both your IRS reporting, and for any required state or local reporting, since the information required in each regime will be different.

Note that there is also a federal law called the Lobbying Disclosure Act that requires some organizations to register and report their federal level lobbying activities. Organizations that have only occasional contacts at the federal level (having occasional meetings with members or staff or sending occasional letters to Congress) will not need to register under the LDA. The thresholds are designed to require only those organizations with sustained lobbying activities and expenses to file. For more information see: https://bolderadvocacy.org/wp-content/uploads/2018/06/Understanding_the_Lobbying_Disclosure_Act.pdf

Q: Does supporting or opposing a ballot measure count as lobbying?

Supporting or opposing a Pennsylvania ballot measure is not regulated as a lobbying activity under Pennsylvania law (even though the IRS does count it as a lobbying activity). Instead, Pennsylvania regulates activity to support or oppose a ballot measure under Pennsylvania’s campaign finance laws. Nonprofit organizations considering working on ballot measures in Pennsylvania (either working to get a measure on the ballot or supporting or opposing an existing measure) should seek advice on how to comply with any applicable state or local campaign finance reporting requirements.

Q: If we are required to register, how does the process work?

All registrations must be done online, within 10 days of triggering registration.

To initiate the process, your organization, and any employee or consultant who is also required to individually register, must first open a Keystone Login Account at: <https://www.dos.pa.gov/keystone/Pages/default.aspx>

Once the account is set up registration proceeds at: <https://www.palobbyingservices.pa.gov/>

Your nonprofit organization will register as a “Principal” and any individual employees or consultants that are required to separately register will register as “Lobbyists.”

Detailed instructions on how to complete the registration process are available at: <https://www.dos.pa.gov/OtherServices/LobbyingDisclosure/Pages/PA-Lobbying-Services-Online.aspx>

A biannual registration fee of $300 is required for the organization and each individual Lobbyist. Registrations are valid until December 31st of the next even-numbered year, and then expire and must be renewed if your organization or any of your staff continue to trigger registration.

Individual Lobbyists will need to upload a photograph to complete their registration. Failure to do so can result in late registration fines!

If information on your organization's registration changes (for example, your mailing address) you will need to amend your registration online within 14 days of the change (other than for associations or member organizations whose number of members changes, which in that case the registration can be updated within 14 days of the end of the year.)

Q: When are periodic lobbying reports due?

Quarterly expense reports to be filed by your organization are due by the 30th day of the following month. Individual Lobbyists do not have to submit separate quarterly reports.

Quarterly reports must be filed for the entire remainder of the two-year registration period, even in quarters where no lobbying work was done, or the lobbying expenses totaled under $3,000. In such cases there is a box to check that will simplify the form, but the report still needs to be submitted every quarter.

As of 2021, there is also an annual requirement for all individual registered Lobbyists to file an "Equity Report" (described below) by July 30 of each calendar year, relating to the period July 1 of the prior year through June 30 of the current year.

For more information about the equity reporting requirement see:

<https://www.dos.pa.gov/OtherServices/LobbyingDisclosure/Pages/Equity-Reports.aspx>

Late fees for both quarterly expense reports and the annual equity reports are $50 for the first ten late days, $100 for each late day after the first 10 late days through the 20th late day, and then $200 for each late day after the first 20 late days.

Q: What information do the periodic lobbying reports include?

In general, once your organization is required to register, all the organizational costs associated with your lobbying activities, including staff and consultant compensation and reimbursements, office expenses, advertising, staff and volunteer meals, travel and lodging, and any other costs of doing the lobbying-related work will need to be reported in the quarterly expense report.

You will also need to report the general topic of the legislation or administration regulation being worked on, details of any gifts or payments made to public officials or state employees, as well as information about any donor (called in the report "source of contribution") that contributed more than 10% of your organization's revenue in the period that may be used for lobbying. See the FAQ below on donor disclosure for more details.

The annual Equity Report filed by each individual registered Lobbyist requires the disclosure of the Principals that the individual Lobbyist lobbied for in the period, and the amount of equity the Lobbyist held in the Principal. For staff working only for you during the reporting period, the disclosure will simply be the name of your nonprofit organization as the Lobbyist's sole Principal, and a statement that the employee does not own any equity in your nonprofit (nonprofits do not issue equity!)

Q: What is considered a reportable "expenditure"?

All organizational expenses related to your lobbying work are reportable in the quarterly expense report.

The total expenses are reported in three categories:

- Expenditures made for the benefit of state officials, state employees or their immediate family members (gifts, hospitality, transportation, or lodging). If any of these expenditures are reported, they must also be reported to the public official at least seven days before the expense report due date so that the official can make an appropriate ethics filing.

- Costs for direct lobbying communications
- Costs for indirect (grassroots) lobbying communications

Detail of individual expense items is not required, other than for any gifts reported in the first category.

You may use any reasonable method to calculate the prorated allocation of the costs of your lobbying activities, including compensation and reimbursements for staff who do work other than lobbying, office expenses that are also used for other organizational activities, staff and volunteer meals, travel and lodging, and any other costs where the lobbying work is not the only reason for the expense.

The reports must be filed online at: <https://www.palobbyingservices.pa.gov/>

Gift ban: It is important to note that regulations relating to lobbying expenditures almost always intersect in complicated ways with state and local ethics and “gift ban” laws. Those state and local rules often apply even if your organization has not triggered lobbyist registration and may apply to a broader range of officials. You should be certain that you understand the intricacies of both sets of rules before giving any gifts to, or paying any expenses for, any public officials at the state or local level.

Because of this overlap between lobbyist registration and reporting and gift ban/ethics rules, most nonprofits without experienced professional lobbyist staff will refrain from making any expenditures for the benefit of public officials and employees, and hence their reports will only include costs of direct and indirect communication.

Q: Will our lobbyist reports be audited by Pennsylvania?

Maybe! Pennsylvania law currently requires that outside independent auditors be hired to audit the reporting of 3% of the organizations (Principals) and 3% of the individual lobbyists (Lobbyists) that were registered during the year. The organizations and individuals that will be audited are chosen by lottery.

The law also requires that you keep records sufficient to document the information contained in your reports for at least four years. Your organization should put in place appropriate operational mechanisms to ensure that if you are audited you have reasonable backup to support your filings.

Q: What kind of disclaimer is required on our grassroots communications?

Pennsylvania law requires disclaimer language be included in any indirect (grassroots) lobbying communications even if your organization is not required to register and report. The text (or audio in the case of phone or radio communications) must clearly and conspicuously state the name of your organization as having paid for the communication.

Q: Do our organization’s donors need to be disclosed on any lobbying reports?

Maybe! If your organization is required to register, the quarterly expense reporting includes the requirement to disclose the source of any contribution (including gifts or grants) that is more than 10% of your organization’s revenue in the period that may be used for lobbying.

Note that from a practical perspective this means that once you are registered, you will need to have a procedure in place to examine:

- Your total revenues for the quarter
- The total amount of such revenues that cannot be used for lobbying (for example, because the grant contract has such a prohibition)

FAQS

- Any contribution that amounts to more than 10% of your total revenue in the quarter that may be used for lobbying

Note that in some scenarios the level of donor that you might need to disclose could be quite small. For example, if most of your revenue in the quarter came from a restricted grant that you cannot use for lobbying, and you received only a few other small gifts, the threshold for “more than 10% of revenues in the quarter that may be used for lobbying” could be quite small.

Note also that the revenues in the quarter do not need to match the source of the funds that you spend on lobbying in that same quarter. You could, for example, be spending funds raised several quarters ago, but the state wants to know about the revenues in the current quarter.

Finally, before you make any donor disclosures on your lobbyist reports, you should also check for any donor disclosure prohibitions in the relevant grant contract, since many donors require prior notice, or potentially even prohibit disclosure of their identity. If you find that the terms of a grant agreement conflict with the donor disclosure required under the Pennsylvania lobbying regulations, you should seek additional guidance.

Q: How are our lobbyists required to identify themselves while lobbying?

A photo is required to be submitted to complete the lobbyist registration, but lobbyist identification badges are not required to be worn while lobbying. However, Lobbyists may request a photo ID card that can be used to avoid having to go through public security procedures.

Q: Are there any other restrictions on Lobbyists that we should be aware of?

Lobbyists are not allowed to serve as the treasurer or chair of a political campaign, or a candidate authorized PAC for statewide public office, state Senate, or state House of Representatives.

Paying Lobbyists contingency fees based on securing passage or defeat of legislation or administrative action is also prohibited.

A Lobbyist may not charge a fee or receive economic consideration based on a contract, either written or oral, that any part of the fee or economic consideration will be converted into a contribution to a state or local candidate for public office or a political committee.

A Lobbyist may not attempt to influence a state official or employee on legislative or administrative action by making or facilitating the making of a loan to the state official or employee, or by the promise of financial support or the financing of opposition to the candidacy of the state official or employee at a future election.

Case Study STUDENTS VOTE NOW

Students Vote Now is a hypothetical small 501(c)(3) advocacy organization considering being vocal about House Bill 101 currently pending in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives

STUDENTS VOTE NOW IS CONSIDERING:

- Reaching out to its student constituents, via direct postal mailings, e-mails, and volunteer phone banking, in order to get the students to call their state house representative about the bill.
- Doing an in-person Lobby Day at the state capital about House Bill 101 to meet with legislators, or alternatively arranging a virtual Zoom lobby event. The Lobby Day activity might potentially include renting a bus, buying T-shirts for the volunteer participants, and handing out some small swag type items from the organization to the legislators, or if done by Zoom, the purchase of an upgraded Zoom account.
- Testifying before a committee of the House of Representatives regarding the student perspective on House Bill 101.
- Having an employee engage with the Mayor of Philadelphia about a similar local ordinance being considered.

ACTIVITY	LOBBYIST REGISTRATION/REPORTING REQUIREMENTS
 Student Engagement	Grassroots lobbying (indirect communication) is regulated in Pennsylvania, and time and money spent on this activity will count towards the registration threshold. Even if Students Vote Now does not end up triggering the registration requirement with this work, the grassroots communications, including the phone banking, will need to include a disclaimer clearly and conspicuously stating that Students Votes Now paid for the communications.
 Lobby Day	The Lobby Day activities are direct communication activities that will also count towards the registration thresholds, and time and money spent on the work needs to be considered together with the other activities planned. Volunteers who attend the event will not need to register because they are not compensated. If Students Vote Now chooses to give swag gifts to the legislators they must report those gifts in a separate category on their quarterly disclosure report, but it is best practice to refrain from doing so.
 Committee Testimony	If Students Vote Now is not required to register for any other reason, the time and money that it spends on this activity is not counted towards a registration threshold. If, because of its other activities, Students Vote Now is required to register, then the costs of preparing for and giving testimony do then need to be included in the quarterly expense report. Staff hours (and prorated pay and reimbursement allocations spent on this task) would also not be counted towards an individual registration trigger.
 Mayor	While lobbying a local public official is not covered under Pennsylvania law, Philadelphia has its own separate lobbying ordinance which is very similar in structure to the state law.¹ Students Votes Now may be able to avoid city-level registration by keeping its spending on this activity to under the registration threshold of $2,500 in the quarter. Pittsburgh also has its own city-level lobbying ordinance.²
Bottom Line	If Students Vote Now spends no more than $3,000 on all of its planned Pennsylvania level activities combined in a calendar quarter (including preparation time and including prorated staff costs) it would not be required to register and report. Consideration could be given to splitting the work over two quarters, using volunteers, or using in-kind donations to keep costs down. Disclaimers will need to be used with the grassroots communications even if registration is not required. Registration may also potentially be required for work with the Philadelphia Mayor if the spending exceeds the threshold in the Philadelphia ordinance.

BOLDER ADVOCACY'S FEDERAL LAW RESOURCES:

While state and local laws regulate which lobbying activities require registration and reporting, the IRS also regulates how much lobbying a 501(c)(3) tax-exempt organization is allowed to do, including at the state and local levels. The way the IRS counts lobbying will almost always be different than how state and local laws count it, and organizations are urged to review our federal law resources to ensure all IRS compliance obligations are being met.
